

Youth Welfare Office (Jugendamt)

Youth welfare as a core task of the Youth Welfare Office (Jugendamt)

Youth welfare supports parents in their educational mission and wants to make it easier for children and young people to grow into society. It is available when conflicts between children, youth, young adults and parents need to be resolved - on a voluntary basis. However, the situation rarely requires intervention in parental rights. Family court decisions are necessary here. Usually, the agreement and willingness of parents and young people to cooperate constructively with the District Youth Welfare Office are indispensable.

Unaccompanied minor refugees are also subject to the Youth Welfare Act (SGB VIII) and are therefore in principle the responsibility of the Youth Welfare Office (Jugendamt).
