

Local public transport

Germany has a good public transport system. In Hagen, only the bus runs because there have been no trams for a long time.

There is a well-planned network with many different means of transport. As these are well connected, you only need one ticket for all modes of transport. The price of the ticket depends on how many stops you travel to.

There is a service centre and a customer centre for information, tickets and subscriptions.
