Translations

Who can translate for you?

You don't speak German very well yet?

Then someone can help you at appointments by translating for you.

For example, at the immigration office or the education authority.

But also at parents' evenings, at school or kindergarten.

For simple appointments with the authorities, it is sufficient if you bring someone with you, whom you trust and who speaks German and your language.

A translator will be provided for you in court.

You need to let them know early enough.

Language and cultural mediators:

People with a migration background work in language and cultural mediation.

They have been specially trained.

These people not only mediate linguistically.

They also mediate between cultures.

They ensure that no misunderstandings arise due to cultural differences.
