Tutoring - General information

Tutoring - General information

Tutoring or learning assistance is additional support for a school subject outside the classroom. This usually has to be paid for by the student.

Tutoring and learning assistance are useful, for example, if the pupil has poor grades and may not make it to the next grade. Or if the school-leaving certificate is at risk. Or if someone does not know a lot of the content in class. Talk to the teachers at school and ask whether tutoring or learning assistance would be useful. Perhaps the school itself has an offer.

It is possible to get money for tutoring. You can apply for support at your local social centre.
